SMALL HEMP CROP IN GARRARD.

Garrard hemp crop this year will be only about one-fourth the usual yield because of the fact that the acreage is only about a fourth of what is was before the farmers turned their attention from the growth of that staple to the extensive cultivation of tobacco. The quality, however, is about up to the average.

The largest crop near Lancaster is a 150-acre tract two miles to the north-east, cultivated by James House on what was formerly the Beasley Bros' farm. One of the finest hemp crops of lower Garrard is that grown by T. Yates Hudson and it has proven to be superior, both in quantity and quality.

Reports from the adjoining county of Boyle also shows quite a reduction in the acreage of hemp, the 1910 crop being about one-fifth of what it was before tobacco became the leading product.

Thurlow Jones sold 28 head 1,200 pound steers to W. H. Lillard, of Boyle at $5.50 per hundred and Henry Osmond, sold 29 head of 1,400 pound cattle to Mr. Lillard at 6 cents. Mr. Lillard sold Mr. Osmond 28 head of feeders at $4.75 per hundred.

T. F. Durham of Boyle, sold 21 head averaging 1,325 pounds to Cleland Coleman, of Harrodsburg, at $6.25 per hundred.

For Sale.—Sow and 9 pigs. R. L. Berry, Hustonville.

Wanted cattle to graze 70 acres of good blue grass. R. L. Berry, Hustonville.

Ben Bright, of Boyle, sold to Mr. Perk Ingram, his farm known as the "Dick Davis place," on the Lexington pike, two miles from Danville. The place contains 154 acres, and while the price paid is not known, it is thought to be $135 per acre.

Kentucky is a better place than Oklahoma, in the eyes of W. E. O'Bryan, who writes from Oklahoma City to M. C. Rankin, Commissioner of Agriculture, for information regarding the State. He says he is from Kentucky and he wishes he was back in the State now as he thinks it is a better place in which to live. He says in the letter that if Kentucky had a live commercial organization like that of Oklahoma many of the men who are going to Oklahoma from the East would stop in Kentucky instead of going further west. He wants the kind of information that is sent out from Kentucky encouraging immigration. Mr. Rankin will comply with his request and will suggest that he come back to Kentucky. Mr. O'Bryan is only one of several who have left Kentucky to go to Oklahoma who have written to Mr. Rankin that they are sorry they left.
